

Cable channels should be billed individually. This may make it more difficult for the cable companies to bill and administer, but why should the consumer have to pay for channels they do not want?